TAKE AN ACTIVE ROLE

Specialized Study Program in Practice-Based Coaching Through Distance Learning

You're clearly invested in our early childhood educators, and you want to encourage them to continue growing, especially as the rise of online learning mandates change. Learn how to be a key participant in teachers' growth and the quality of our children's education with a research-based approach to professional development.

First, understand the foundation of practice-based coaching, including the history, theory, and practice. Learn about the types of adult learners you will encounter as a coach and the best methods for engaging with them and keeping them engaged. Find out how to support their experiential learning, teach in different settings, and establish a collaborative relationship with your adult students. Then take this knowledge directly into practice with your own observations using a library of video recordings. See how the three-part cycle that is fundamental to practice-based coaching works, particularly with adult students of diverse backgrounds. Take your understanding of goal planning, observation, and applied feedback to your teachers or ECE professionals and help them build a better learning experience for children.
